WATSON DICKSON DIES IN HOSPITAL

J. Watson Dickson, of Baltimore Street, well known Rural Mail Carrier. Dies in Hospital of Heart Disease. Funeral Notice.

James Watson Dickson, of Baltimore street, died this morning at six o'clock at the York Hospital from a disease of the heart. He was aged 57 years, 3 months and 12 days.

Mr. Dickson had not been in good health for some months but had been able to attend to his duties as rural mail delivery carrier from the Gettysburg post office until about three weeks ago. He covered his route only a few days before he went to the hospital at York on September 23. He became rapidly worse and early in the week it was thought he could live but a few days. He rallied, however, but sank again and death came this morning.

Mr. Dickson was born June 25, 1854 on the old Dickson farm in Strahan township near Hunterstown. He was a son of John and Martha Dickson and continued living on the farm until 1895 when he moved to Hagerstown where he was engaged as a machinist for several years, coming to Gettysburg in 1901 to take up the work of a rural mail delivery carrier. Mr. Dickson's route is known as route eight and covers a large section of Strahan township. He was recognized as one of the most careful and efficient carriers in the service.

He leaves his wife and two sons, John W. Dickson, of York, and James Gilbert Dickson, of Atlantic City. He also leaves one brother and one sister, Dr. J. R. Dickson, of this place, and Mrs. Rebecca C. Long, of Chattanooga, Tennessee.

The body will arrive this evening at the home of Mrs. Yeatts. Mrs. Dickson's sister, in Hunterstown. The funeral services will be held Monday in the old Presbyterian church at Hunterstown and interment will be made in the cemetery adjoining.

MILITARY MANEUVER PLANS

The joint maneuvers of the Regular Army and the National Guard next year promise to be on very different lines for the maneuvers held at Gettysburg and elsewhere in 1910 or preceding years, if Congress approves the War Department's estimate of around a million and a half dollars appropriation for such a purpose.

Many of the ranking officers of the Army experienced in these joint maneuvers have come to the conclusion that little real good is accomplished by the present system of chasing a lot of raw military recruits through a camp of regulars, with the opportunity for training limited to 10 days or a fortnight at the outside. It has been found that except in the case of the city militia organizations most of the regulars and companies come into the joint camps undermanned and with their ranks filled with young lads evidently below the proper age, and enlisted simply to swell the company to the necessary figure to entitle it to admission.

Such material is entirely unsuitable for maneuver purposes, lacking as it does the initial training that should be had in armories and on the drill grounds.

A proposition being considered is that instead of having a large maneuver camp to be maintained at one point, a practical turn be given to the maneuvers by unexpectedly calling out a complete division to be mobilized perhaps in each section of the country to test the elasticity and responsiveness of the National Guard.

FULTON'S SHERIFF IS FOUND GUILTY

Sheriff Harris, of Fulton County, Found Guilty on Charge of Allowing Prisoner, Accused of Barn Burning, to Escape.

Jefferson Harris, Sheriff of Fulton county, was on Friday found guilty of the criminal charge of permitting a prisoner to escape through gross negligence. The prisoner was Russel Sipes, indicted for arson.

During the past few months a number of stables have been burned in McConnellsburg, all supposed to have been the work of an incendiary, the last being the large Dickson stable in the central part of the town, and the fire was such as to threaten the destruction of the greater part of the town. Immediately after the Dickson fire a detective was employed, and soon sufficient evidence was gathered to warrant the arrest of Russel Sipes.

Before the warrant was served Sipes appeared before the Magistrate and offered to enter bail for his appearance, but as the Magistrate had no authority to take bail, at the request of the District Attorney Lynch, a commitment was made out and handed to the Sheriff. This he refused to accept, and the prisoner was allowed to go at large; but by the next morning the citizens had raised such an outcry against the Sheriff that he was compelled to go to the Magistrate and lift the commitment, which he did and soon had the prisoner lodged in jail. Before daylight of the next day, however, all the prison doors were opened and the prisoner gone.

The day following his escape from jail it is said the prisoner was seen in company with the Sheriff at the prisoner's home, and at other places; but the Sheriff failed to land him in jail and he is still at large.

Judge Swope made Sheriff Harris give bond of $2,000 for his appearance at court at 8 p. m. today.

SEES DANGER IN LAKE ROYER

Almost every visitor to Pen Mar has seen Lake Royer. It is an immense body of water, twenty feet deep at some places, quite wide and quite long. It is estimated that it contains billions of gallons of water just as did the dam at Austin. While it is called a lake it is really a dam, having been constructed as a swimming and boating place in summer for the thousands of cottagers and excursionists and as a means of affording an ice supply for the Western Maryland Railroad in winter time.

The Chambersburg Repository gives the above and makes the following comments:

"The direct overflow from this immense body of water is down a mountain ravine and finally into the Antietam. Directly in the course of this overflow lies the village of Rouzer, Franklin county, the stream passing just to the rear of the town. We do not pretend to say that the breach of this dam is unsafe, for we know nothing about it, but neither was the one at South Forks, that deluged Johnstown, or the one at Austin regarded as unsafe.

"In view of the two appalling disasters that have occurred by breaking of dams in this state would it not be the part of wisdom to see that Lake Royer is secure? Lake Royer is in the same position today as were the two dams above referred to."

ARRESTED TWO SUSPICIOUS MEN

Two Men Thought to Have Been Connected with Robberies about Littlestown and elsewhere are Arrested at Taneytown.

Two men were arrested by Constable Miller, in Taneytown, suspected of having been the robbers who have been operating at several points in Northern Carroll County, and about Littlestown, the latest case being at Bridgeport, on Tuesday night, where the house of Isaac Eckert was entered, and a small amount of money taken from Mr. Eckert's trousers while he was asleep.

The robbers were tracked easily, as the ground was soft and they had walked in stocking feet. The parties arrested had spent a portion of the night in George Sauble's barn at the edge of town, and on Wednesday, after the suspects had passed along Reindollar and Company's lumber yard, several pairs of mud covered stockings were found there, which seemed to correspond with the tracks at Bridgeport.

The men gave their names as James Dorne and William Walters, the former a young and the latter an old man. Dorne carried a new loaded revolver. They did not give a very clear account of themselves and appeared unwilling to answer questions. They denied having been in the neighborhood of Union Mills, and stoutly asserted their innocence of thieving, but would give no names of acquaintances for reference as to character.

States Attorney Reifsnider and Sheriff Kemper interviewed them before Justice Diffendal, and from the circumstantial evidence produced they were held under bail for action of the Grand Jury. Dorne on the charge of carrying concealed weapons.

They were taken to jail by way of Union Mills, at which place a number of citizens easily recognized them as having been in the neighborhood the day before the robbery at that place. While there is not a great amount of direct evidence of guilt attaching to the parties, general opinion is that they are the ones who have been doing the work which has caused so much excitement in that section during the past two weeks.

STOLL ACQUITTED IN LYNCHING CASE

Lad Was Then Borne About on Friends' Shoulders.

West Chester, Pa., Oct. 7.—George Stoll, sixteen years old, who was charged with murder in the lynching of Zack Walker, at Coatesville, Pa., was acquitted.

As the verdict was announced by Frank Young, foreman of the jury, a murmur of applause swept through the court room, only to be stifled by Judge Hemphill.

As the Judge stepped down from the bench and started for his chambers the Coatesville friends of Stoll, who had been waiting in the court room for over an hour, swept forward, some of them even vaulting the enclosure rail, and grasped the acquitted lad by the hand.

Then, as court adjourned, the commotion began. While they were in the court room the friends of Stoll remained completely quiet, but Sheriff Golder guided the youth to the corridor and the crowd went wild.

As they reached the entrance of the court house the sheriff patted the lad on the back and ushered him forth into the open.

Chester Bostick, Clyde Woodward, Charles Whitely and Raymond Day, four of Stoll's closest friends, and all witnesses called against him by the Commonwealth, lifted him to their shoulders as he reached Market street. For over a block they bore him aloft, while from store doors and dwellings people rushed forth and cheered.

His Secretary States a Monarchy Has Been Proclaimed.

London, Oct. 7.—King Manuel's secretary, Marquis Della Vradia, has issued a statement which says the royalists have occupied two provinces in northern Portugal and that they have proclaimed a monarchy.

The fact that Manuel has declared his willingness to return to Portugal at a moment's notice, together with developments of the last few days, is believed to indicate that he has significant information.

The royalists in London, however, are disturbed by the announcement of Post Wheeler, "charge of the American embassy at St. Petersburg, that Russia has decided to recognize officially the republic of Portugal.

ARREST FOUR FOR CONTRACT FRAUDS

Two Philadelphia Officials Are Among the Accused.

NO ACTUAL ARRESTS MADE

Chairman of Taxpayers' Committee
Alleges Accused Men Are Guilty of Criminal Conspiracy in Defrauding
Quaker City.

"Philadelphia, Oct. 7.—Logan M. Bullitt, chairman of the taxpayers' committee on city finances, basing his charges on testimony elicited before the Catlin 'Lexow' commission, has caused the issuance of criminal warrants against two high city officials and two members of the contracting corporation of John R. Wiggins & Co. These men are: Henry Clay, director of public safety; Carl Zienziger, city architect; John R. Wiggins and Willard H. Walls.

The two latter are the president and treasurer respectively of the John R. Wiggins company.

Mr. Bullitt's affidavit in support of the warrants affirms that the four men involved were guilty of conspiracy with each other to the end that the city of Philadelphia might be cheated and defrauded. It is set forth that the effect of this alleged conspiracy to give the Wiggins contracting company an illegal advantage in the bidding for and awarding of contracts for large public works. It is alleged that competitive bidding was done away with and that thereby contracts were let at exorbitant prices.

Specifically it is charged that after the contracts had been awarded the specifications were corruptly altered. By this means, it is charged, the work was cheapened and the road laid open to fraud and corruption.

The warrants were issued by Magistrate Barrett. Thereupon counsel for the city officials and for the members of the Wiggins company accepted service of them so that actual arrests were not required.

Hearings of the cases were set for Monday morning, at which time the defendants will waive a hearing, and if necessary enter bail for appearance in court later in the year. Following their due course, the charges will be brought to the attention of the November grand jury. Should that body find that the charges are capable of substantiation, then indictments will be had without further delay.

The arrests, or rather the formal arrests, threw the political riatto into a veritable panic. They came, too, as somewhat of a surprise to the principals and attorneys concerned. Mr. Graham, whom Director Clay lost no time in consulting, frankly expressed surprise. He said: "I am surprised that the Bullitt committee should take such hasty action." He added that ball would be entered at the proper time.

In this connection and with reference to the personnel of Mr. Clay's counsel, there was good foundation for the rumor that James Scarlett, one of the prosecutors in the capitol scandal, would be retained to co-operate with Mr. Scott and Mr. Graham.

AUTO PLUNGES DOWN STAIRS

Bystander Is Crushed to Death When Machine Starts Up Suddenly.

Philadelphia, Oct. 7.—Plunging backward down the steep steps of the Bourse postoffice, a runaway automobile crushed Isaac C. Kriebel to death.

The spectacular accident terrorized a hundred business men in and about the postoffice, and for an hour after Kriebel was carried away dying and business men had dragged the automobile from the narrow stairway, big crowds lingered about the steps while porters mopped up the bloodstains.

Charles R. Mullen, who was in charge of the automobile when the accident occurred, is held by the police on a technical charge of assault and battery.

Mullen ran the car down the street, then backed against the curb to make a sharp turn and go northward. As the rear wheels of the automobile struck against the curb in front of the postoffice steps the engine stopped. Forgetting to shut off the machine, Mullen stepped to the front of the car and cranked the engine, and the automobile plunged backward with a bound and plumed down the postoffice steps. Kriebel was caught near the top of the steps, hurled backward and wedged against the stone staircase. He died without regaining consciousness.

Italy Probes Miners' Deaths.

Hazleton, Pa., Oct. 7.—The Italian government is investigating the death of five of its subjects killed in an accident at the Drifton colliery of the Lehigh Valley Coal company. The men were sucked into an abandoned air shaft and suffocated in a rush of culm they were removing. C. F. Tiscar, the Italian consul at Scranton, attended the funerals of the victims. He spent some time learning the details of the fatality.

HOIST FRENCH FLAG OVER FORT AT AGADIR

Government Disavows Action of Enthusiasts.

Berlin, Oct. 7.—A group of Frenchmen hoisted a French flag over the fort at Agadir, Morocco, threatening grave international complications.

It was announced that France had proclaimed a protectorate and that a French cruiser was enroute for Agadir.

The caliph appealed to the commander of a German warship in the harbor, but he refused to interfere. The French flag was planted on an ancient bastion dominating the town, and which the over-zealous French patriots had occupied in the absence of the garrison. They fired a salute and sent word to the Germans to leave Agadir, which they declared had become a French possession.

The French government immediately disavowed the action and, as it is not represented at Agadir, instructed the French consul at Mogador to ask the Moroccan authorities to take measures to remove the flag and end the incident.

The incident, according to the dispatches received in Berlin, created excitement in Southern Morocco, but the German foreign office is satisfied with the counter-measures adopted by the French government.

10,000 DIE IN BATTLE

American Missionaries Report on Native Sufferings in China.

Peking, Oct. 7.—American Methodist missionaries at Cheng Tu, the recently besieged capital of Sze-Chuen province, telegraphed that they estimate that 10,000 persons were killed during the fighting between the insurgents and the government troops. Of the dead 2000 were soldiers and the others rebels.

Ten thousand rebels are in possession of several cities southwest of Cheng-Tu. Soldiers are now marching against them.

The Methodists say that as a result of the uprising thousands of natives are homeless, and many, becoming desperate, committed suicide. The Methodists appeal for relief funds from America to be distributed under their supervision.

A CUCUMBER CRAZE

By M. QUAD

Copyright, 1911, by Associated Literary Press.

It was said that the farmers in the country about Olney were up to snuff. No patent hayforks could be unloaded on them. Of the hundreds of patent medicine circulars they received each year not one resulted in the sale of a consumption cure. The tin peddlers who dealt with them took their lives in their hands. "Cute" was the word applied to the people of the town and county.

One October day a middle aged man of good address might have been seen driving toward Olney in a buggy. It was raining, and the highway was muddy. At a certain spot a wheel fell into a rut, and the buggy was tipped over. Five minutes later a citizen of Olney named Scott came driving in from a crossroad. He at once offered his aid. It wasn't much of a trick to right the buggy, as no damage had been done, but the stranger, who gave his name as Anderson, was profuse in his thanks. He was so profuse as to embarrass Mr. Scott. He said it was the first thing that had happened in years to make him believe in humanity. Mr. Scott could have passed him by, but hadn't done so. Mr. Scott had halted and got down in the pouring rain and grabbed and heaved on the muddy wheel. Mr. Scott had been offered a dollar for his trouble, but had, waved it away.

The stranger was to stop at the Raven Inn, in town. He might be there a week. If Mr. Scott would call he would be shown that gratitude still existed in the human breast. Mr. Scott felt that the stranger was overdoing things, but curiosity forced him to call. He was warmly received.

Then Mr. Anderson told his secret. He was traveling over the country to find some farmer he could trust. Those seeds were a new variety of cucumber—a chocolate colored cucumber. It grew to a length of three feet and was going to produce a revolution in food. It could be baked, boiled or fried, the same as a potato, but contained three times the nutriment, and the taste was something that beat fried oysters all to smash. The big hotels of the cities would pay a dollar apiece for them and would contract for a million a year. Hush! On your life don't mention it! More money in it than in a diamond mine. Mr. Scott had helped Mr. Anderson out of the mud. Mr. Anderson would now help Mr. Scott out of any financial hole he had fallen into. He would give him twenty of the seeds. The twenty would grow 250 one dollar cucumbers, and the 250 cucumbers would produce a full peck of seeds.

Mr. Scott was amazed, astonished and grateful. It was the first time he had ever been handed something for nothing since coming down with measles. Mr. Scott did not drop a word to a human soul. His wife saw that he had something on his mind and tried to pick it out of him, but sooner than tell her he let her threaten to go home to her mother. It was Mr. Anderson who tackled a farmer now and then in the streets of Olney and took him to his room and showed him one of the wonderful cucumbers. He didn't do it to sell seeds, just to drop a hint of what was coming.

And then the farmer would go home and think it over. He couldn't wait three years for seeds. He wanted to be in at the start, before the price should drop on an overstocked market. He would go back to the kind Mr. Anderson and ask as a great favor to sell him a score or so. In each and every case he did go back and paid a dollar apiece for the seeds and took his solemn oath not to say a word before the next spring, and he went away with the little packet of seeds hugged to his palpitating heart.

In time that salt bag of seeds was emptied and filled again. In time every man who could raise a few dollars and wanted to make ten for one had bought seeds. The news somehow reached as far as twenty miles away. There was no day that Mr. Anderson didn't have callers and didn't exchange seeds for greenbacks. It was with chocolate colored seeds that he paid his bill at the hotel. The landlord of the inn was a man who wanted the very best for his guests. If the new brand cucumbers were the best he wanted them.

From October to March Mr. Anderson had a good time. He lived high, had the best room in the house and carried around a pocketful of money. Then one day he had to leave for Buffalo on business. He was to return in two days, but he was not back as yet. He will never come back in the flesh. His spirit may float over Olney now and then, but no human eye will detect it. When he had been absent for three weeks some of the seeds were sent to the state agricultural college for examination. The report was very brief. It simply said: "These are the usual cucumber seeds, dyed this color to disguise them."

And were there mourning and lamentation and threats of murder in and about Olney? No, sir. You couldn't find a man who had bought a seed and been swindled. Mr. Anderson had tried to swindle Smith, Jones and Brown, but Smith, Jones and Brown had seen through him in a second. Not one man of the hundreds taken in but what denied it point blank and is denying it to this day. All had reputations to maintain, and they fled boldly and profusely and gamely to maintain it.

Humor of the Day

Father Explains.

"Yes, Tom was hurt in the explosion, a good deal hurt, but we think he will come out in the end almost as good as before."

"How? Oh, it was this way. Tom had had some spare time at home in July and had begun a flirtation with a summer girl. I stood it as long as I could, but it got on my nerves so badly that I went to Tom and said to him: 'Now, this summer girl amusement is too dangerous. I tell you what, if you must have a risky job, get a shed built down there at the foot of the lawn and get some suitable chemicals and see if you can't learn to make nitroglycerin. As long as you don't it won't hurt you, and if you do and it blows up, why, you will have succeeded and will either get well or that will be the end of it, and either way you will be learning something. But this summer girl amusement is too risky in that you are fooling with something much stronger than dynamite, able to throw you farther and hurt you worse and much more permanently. If you fall in it you have wasted time, and if you succeed you neither die nor recover.'"

"Strange to say, Tom was impressed. He bought a portable house, put it up as far off as possible, got chemicals, went to work and produced a nice explosion about 4 o'clock last Tuesday. He may lose an eye, and how his hand will finally come out I don't know yet; but, as the Scriptures say, better muddle along with one eye or one hand than go miscellaneous to hades. I feel these hurts are nothing to what he was likely to get in that other game."—Life.

Things Not on Program.

A wagon show which had gaudy paper, but little else, played to a very unsatisfactory business in a small town generally good.

Following the afternoon performance two locals were checking up the show from the thirty-two sheet stand on the fence opposite the depot.

"They didn't have this," said one, pointing to a herd of elephants.

"Nor this," said the other, designating a thrilling riding act.

"Blamed if I saw this." No. 1 went on, indicating a flying trapeze performance.

Popcorn George, who had suffered keenly through a slack day, had overheard the conversation. Stepping between them, he put his hand on a scene showing a mob storming a red wagon for tickets.

"No," said he, "and they didn't have this."—Chicago Evening Post.

The New Mental Parlor.

The young man from out of town called at the home of an east end girl the other evening and while there made the acquaintance of her young sister and brother.

The sister came into the room, closely followed by the brother, and abruptly said to the guest, "If George Washington got praised for hakin' a cherry tree what would he have got for Hackensmidt?"

And immediately the small boy chimed, "Look up the cat, sister; the canary is out."

"Good gracious!" cried the guest as the children withdrew. "What was that extraordinary question the little girl asked me?"

"That was a daffydil," the older sister replied.

"And the little boy's remark?"

"That was persiflage."

But the young man went away mystified.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

ITALIANS NOW RULE IN TRIPOLI

Seize City Deserted by Turkish Troops.

MARINE FORCES LANDED

Arab Chiefs Submit and Plead For Cessation of Bombardment—Europeans Were Unharmed.

Tripoli, North Africa, Oct. 7.—The Italians have established a new government for Tripoli. Rear Admiral Boreddolone has been appointed governor. Captain Caligi was made commandant of the forces disembarked by the Italian fleet.

After Italian seamen have been landed and occupied Fort Sultania the chiefs of the Arab tribes adjacent to Tripoli went aboard the Italian flagship and gave their submission. They begged the Italians not to resume the bombardment.

The German consul, as the senior member of the consular corps, also visited the flagship and asked Vice Admiral Faravilla to assume responsibility for the preservation of public order and the protection of foreign residents in Tripoli, which had been abandoned by the Turkish troops.

The admiral landed other detachments of sailors with guns, including quick-firing pieces, and occupied Tripoli in a military sense. This was accomplished without incident, and the appointment of a governor followed.

The German consul informed Vice Admiral Faravilla that during the shelling of the town no harm had been done to any European, or damage to the property of Europeans.

A correspondent at Dehbat, on the Tunisian frontier, says: "Six soldiers and six Hebrews were killed and five soldiers and one Hebrew wounded during the bombardment of Tripoli. The Europeans, of whom there are still 4000 in Tripoli, were unharmed. The house of the interpreter of the German consulate was badly damaged, but the shells from the Italian fleet did comparatively little damage in the city.

"The Moslems remained passive during the bombardment."

The Italian sailors buried the Turkish dead, according military honors to those who chose death rather than to surrender.

Twenty wounded Turks were placed in the hospital wards of the Italian warships. The wounds of these were very serious. Others who were slightly wounded were carried away by their comrades. Those of the injured Turks who are able to talk state that further resistance on their part was impossible, owing to the inferiority of their number and of their fighting equipment.

The Turkish civilian prisoners held in Italy will receive 40 cents a day from the Italian government during their detention. The prisoners of war at Syracuse will be permitted to be present at the drills of the Italian soldiers, who are about to sail for Tripoli.

A wireless message was sent to the pope by Monsignor Rossetti, the apostolic delegate at Tripoli, and sent by permission of Governor Boreddolone, saying:

"For the first time since the Knights of St. John were defeated by the Turks, and lost Tripoli in 1551, the cross of Christianity has been raised over this land. This time, next to the cross is the flag of Savoy."

The apostolic delegate adds that the bombardment and occupation were conducted with the utmost regard for humanity. During the bombardment he, with the Franciscan monks and nuns, remained in Tripoli to nurse the wounded, and they prayed to the Almighty to grant victory to the arms of faith and civilization. The message ends by imploring the apostolic benediction on Tripoli and its new rulers.

Poison From Money Caused Death.

Boston, Oct. 7.—Poison from the handling of money caused the death in Waltham of George H. Farnham, treasurer of the Waltham Co-operative bank. Some time ago Mr. Farnham, while counting money in the bank, scratched a small pinhole behind his ear and thought no more of the incident until the mimple gave him considerable pain. It developed into an abscess and eventually the poison impregnated his blood and culminated in Bright's disease.

MONUMENTS CIVIL WAR WOMEN

Loyal Legion Accepts $50,000 Gift Toward $500,000 Monument.

New York, Oct. 7.—Announcement is made by James M. Beck, counsel for the New York commandery of the Loyal Legion, that a gift of $50,000 has been made by a retired army officer to start a fund of $500,000 to be used in the erection in Washington of a national memorial to the "women of the Civil War."

Although the condition named by the anonymous donor was that his gift was contingent upon the raising of $500,000, the commandery adopted a resolution accepting the gift and binding itself to make the total amount $500,000, to be raised within a year.

DAM BURSTS AND WIPES OUT A TOWN

Black River Falls, Wis., Wrecked by Rushing Water.

Lacrosse, Wis., Oct. 7.—The city of Black River Falls has been wiped out of existence by the rushing down the valley of the Black River of the waters of Lake Arbuthus, the artificial lake created by the $500,000 water power dam at Hatfield, five miles above Black River Falls.

Two persons are known to be dead. Rumors of other casualties are numerous, and one report is that forty are dead. Confirmation of this report is impossible, but while there have undoubtedly been many fatalities, the number of dead can hardly be so large, for it was known at daylight that the Hatfield dam was imperiled and the people through the valley had been warned.

The Hatfield dam itself, a concrete structure 100 feet wide at the bottom, 50 feet wide at the top and 20 feet high, still stands. Lake Arbuthus, above the dam, has, however, torn away the granite sides of the valley in which the dam is built, and the dam is an island between two rushing torrents, which at one time were forty feet deep.

Only the giving of warning early in the day saved Black River Falls from a repetition of the Austin, Pa., disaster.

KILLS WIFE AND SELF

Double Tragedy Enacted on Street in Bridgeton, N. J.

Bridgeton, N. J., Oct. 7.—Walter Peterson, a glass worker, shot his wife and then himself on North Laurel street, both falling dead instantly.

He had a revolver which he suddenly pulled from his pocket, and, standing close beside the woman, sent a bullet into her left temple and then turned it on himself, putting another bullet into the right side of his own head. The brain of each was entered.

It is said there had been trouble between him and his wife for some time. It is charged that he would not provide for her support. He had not worked at his trade for some time, and last month was placed in jail on a charge of assault.

Judge and Son Hurt by Aeroplane.

Legs Cut Off by Train.

Rising Sun, Md., Oct. 7.—Clarence Kirk, a wealthy farmer of this place, had both legs amputated by a train at Perryville. Mr. Kirk attended the base ball game and was busy talking when the train pulled out. He ran, and in attempting to get aboard fell beneath the wheels.

merous separate wires is resisted by the surface film so that the water cannot readily pass through the meshes. Insects and plants utilize this fact in many interesting ways. Some water plants whose leaves float on the water have a very simple contrivance to keep the upper surfaces of the leaves dry. This consists of a great number of minute hairs covering the tops of the leaves. Water cannot penetrate among these hairs even when the leaves are forced down beneath the surface.

MORGAN OUT TO CRUSH TAFT

Will Seek to Defeat Him For Re-election.

BITTER OVER TRUST ISSUE

New York Financier Is Reported Ready to Fight President to Finish In Political Battle.

Washington, Oct. 7.—Postmaster General Hitchcock has returned from the aviation meet in New York with the knowledge that if President Taft is renominated and re-elected it will have to be in the face of the house of Morgan.

Not only has notice been served on the Taft leaders that they need not expect any financial help from J. Pierpont Morgan and the men who are actively allied with Morgan in big business, but the word has gone out from Mr. Morgan himself to make war on Taft.

From reliable quarters comes the news that when Postmaster General Hitchcock went to New York to attend the aviation meet he sounded certain of the lieutenant of Mr. Morgan as to whether contributions would be forthcoming to help re-elect Taft. Instead of getting aid and comfort, or the promise of any, it is declared that Mr. Hitchcock was turned down cold.

In effect the word has gone forth from J. Pierpont Morgan himself that there is a time to make peace and a time to fight, and now is the time to fight.

It is not without reason that for some days past strange rumors have been flitting about in high political circles that Wall street has turned against President Taft. So far as the powerful influences of Mr. Morgan is concerned this is true. Mr. Morgan is displeased over the attitude of President Taft with respect to the trusts and combinations. It will be recalled that in recent months men like George W. Perkins, Judge E. H. Gary, of the steel corporation, and others have urged persistently that the Sherman law be amended and that legislation be worked out to permit great combinations of capital to exist under the sheltering supervision of the government.

In contrast, President Taft has not only said the Sherman law is in no need of amendment, but he has gone further than this. He gives utterance in his Waterloo speech to what is interpreted by Mr. Morgan and his powerful allies as notice that they must either submit to reorganization of the combinations they control or prosecutions will be relentlessly carried on. Attorney General Wickersham has taken an uncompromising attitude with respect to the rigid enforcement of the Sherman law and is insistent that trust magnates who violate it be thrown into prison.

Under such circumstances, Mr. Morgan and the men about him are not only preparing to resist Taft, but they are giving attention to the question of what man to put into the White House to succeed him. They do not expect to be able to prevent the renomination of the president. They do expect to be able to prevent his re-election.

Governor Judson Harmon is the first choice of the powerful financial group of which Mr. Morgan is the center. His record of the enforcement of the Sherman law when he was attorney general is sufficiently devoid of anything strenuous to satisfy Mr. Morgan and his friends.

Further than this, gossip has it that men close to Mr. Morgan have been examining into the Champ Clark situation. They are wondering whether Mr. Clark would not be much preferable to Wilson, and it is possible that, if nothing better can be done, the Morgan influence and such conservative Democratic strength as this influence can command will be thrown at the last moment to Clark.

TAFT ANSWERS CRITICS

Has No Discretion in Prosecution of Trusts, He Says.

Pocatello, Idaho, Oct. 7.—President Taft made what may be taken as his final answer to the criticisms directed by certain business interests against his declaration at Waterloo that the attorney general must pursue without discretion the prosecutions against combinations existing in violation of the Sherman law.

Under his oath of office, he declared, he had himself no discretion in the prosecution of such combines and could not withhold prosecution just to help business. He said that he recognized the harm to business that such prosecutions would bring, but declared that prosecutions must go on and that the tools of reform from the evil of unlawful combination to a future tranquility and prosperity.

The president has followed closely the comment upon his Waterloo speech, and he entered his reply unexpectedly. He said that a better condition would come when those business interests which have heretofore regarded the Sherman law as not meaning anything much would come to realize that it was to be enforced. Then he said a conclusion could be reached and a solution found by which business could be restored to a proper and legitimate business.

The little rafts of eggs that gnats set afloat on the water are kept from sinking and from being upset through this same principle. The tiny eggs have their points all upward, and they are glued together so closely that, while there is open space all around the point of each egg, yet the width of these spaces is so slight that water cannot readily pass through. You may again and again upset such an egg raft, but it will right itself every time, and the upper surface will remain dry.

O'TOOLE'S FAREWELL.

Manager of St. Paul Awards the Twirler a Bright Red Sweater. When Marty O'Toole, the $22,500 pitcher of the Pittsburgh Nationals, handed in his uniform to Manager Kelley at St. Paul it was with a sigh of regret, for in his own words he gained every bit of reputation he has wearing those colors.

"Here, Marty, you can keep this red sweater vest," said Kelley as O'Toole tossed it into his locker. "Take it along, and when you wear it think of St. Paul and the Saints."

"You bet I will," said Marty's comeback. "I learned more wearing that red coat between innings than I ever expect to cram in my head during the rest of my days."

"A wonderful chap," said Kelley when O'Toole was out of hearing distance. "The best fellow I ever knew." Marty whispered to his neighbor at the same time.

MAY QUIT ROWING GAME.

Shepherd Disappointed at Failure to Win Sculling Championship.

Satisfied with the record he has made, but disappointed because he failed in many attempts to capture the title of single sculling champion of the United States and Canada, Frederick Shepherd, the crack oarsman of the Harlem (New York) Rowing club, may be seen in a racing shell no more.

Shepherd when he crossed the line a winner with Frederick Fuesell, his partner, in the senior double event at the middle states regatta in Baltimore Labor day probably rowed his last race.

Shepherd said he remained in the game this year solely out of a desire to win the single sculling championship and to retain the double sculling championship. He did not win the former and lost the latter. He now believes it time to retire.

NEED FOOTBALL SCIENCE.

Reed Says Cornell's Weakness in This Sport Not Coach's Fault.

Coach Dan Reed of Cornell says what Ithaca college, whose weakness seems to be in football, judged by their poor showing against Pennsylvania in their annual Thanksgiving day game, needs is football reduced to a science. This is the secret of Yale's success, he says.

Reed pointed out that although Cornell had the services of such good men as Houghton, the present Harvard coach, and Sanford of Yale to look after their teams in the past there was not a line of records left behind to throw any light as to what they had done, what they had found to be needed and what should be discarded.

MORE BALLPLAYER ACTORS.

Coombs, Collins, Bender and Morgan to Appear in Vaudeville This Winter.

Jack Coombs, Chief Bender, Eddie Collins and Cy Morgan of the world's champion Athletics are to follow Mike Donlin, Christy Mathewson, Joe Tinker, Doc White and Larry McLean on the stage. It is said that Morgan, who is known as the "minstrel man" of baseball, is writing a vaudeville sketch, in which he and his three teammates will appear. The contract is said to be a liberal one. Aside from a large salary for each man, it provides that the wives of the four players are to accompany the actor men players over the circuit.

Colonial Teams at London.

A scheme for the Olympic games at Stockholm next summer has been elaborated—namely, that the colonies of Great Britain—Australia, New Zealand, Canada and South Africa—will select their teams and the whole contingent be brought together in London a fortnight before they are due to leave for Stockholm. Here they will meet the British team, and all will train together under the care of coaches and trainers. Australia will have probably twenty to twenty-five men, including a rowing eight. Canada will send thirty, while London may have fifty, probably more.

Bodie a Natural Hitter.

Ping Bodie of the White Sox hits because he's a hitter and not because he outguesses pitchers. Bodie made a single against Eddie Plank in the recent White Sox-Athletic series, but when he reached first Stuffy McInnis said, "What did you hit, Ping?" "A spitball," said the fence buster. "Ed Plank never threw a spitball in his life," said McInnis. "Well, then, it was a straight one," said Ping.

Cole a Crack Pool Player.

"King" Cole is out after Johnny Kling's scalp as a pool player. Kling is known as the best pool player among ball players, but Cole declares he will trim Johnny in about a year or two. Practically every spare minute Cole has he spends in playing the game, and it is intimated that he would be twirling better ball if he did not waste so much time on this game.

As the rural resident welcomes the mail carrier each morning it is hard for him to realize how great the industry is of which the latter is a part. However, there are 40,000 other men who are making just such trips every day. The aggregate distance that they travel daily is 1,000,000 miles, and in a year it reaches the enormous total of 300,000,000 miles. The service over these 40,000 routes costs the government $37,000,000 a year.

RAISING TWO LITTERS A YEAR.

When the farmer expects to raise two litters of pigs a year he must handle his sows in such a way that will accomplish this result, writes a South Dakota farmer in the American Agriculturist. "For the first litter I breed so the sows will farrow before the weather gets cold in the fall and then again for spring pigs as soon as possible. Of course this requires the raising of pigs in the fall without much succulent feed. However, this is not such a difficult task if the farmer goes at it right.

"The boar is given a small amount of corn and some oats to keep him in good flesh during the fall. He should not be too fat, but in a thrifty condition. During the summer most of his

There is one class of farm animals that should be given a prominent place upon every farm where alfalfa or other forage crops can be grown, says Professor P. N. Flint of the Kansas Agricultural College. There is no need for me to tell you that this animal is the pig and that, with the exception of the chicken, when properly fed and handled he becomes the most profitable meat producing animal on the farm. A litter of pigs dropped today will be in condition for the market in six months. These very pigs will make a pound of gain from less feed than will the beef steer, and the meat which they furnish will go further than a like quantity of beef. The Berkshire sow herewith shown was a grand champion last year. The illustration is reproduced from the Country Gentleman.

living is secured from good pasture, and therefore he requires but little care and attention.

"The sows get about the same kind of feed, but they require more of it, especially when they suckle a bunch of pigs. In that case they receive corn during the summer, even when on good pasture.

The little pigs are fed skim milk and corn in an adjoining pen. Small runways are left in the fence just so the pigs can get through and help themselves. They are accustomed to look for feed at this place, and it does not take long until they are great feeders, and after a few months they are weaned.

I do not believe it a good plan to breed gilts under a year old unless they are very large and vigorous, in which case nine or ten months is best. When sows are with pigs the board should be taken away, and by the time she is to farrow it will be well worth while to watch her very closely. The sow should be separated from the herd and kept in a pen until the pigs are strong and able to get about. The successful hog raiser remembers that a little care at this time will save pigs, sometimes a whole litter, if not the mother.

Ration For a Bull.

A ration for the bull should be rather rich in protein. One rich in carbohydrates tends to fatten and to impair his procreative powers, says Hoard's Dairyman. Silage is not considered a good feed for the bull. If it is fed it must be given in very limited quantities. Where it is possible a liberal allowance of clover and timothy hay should be given and then enough concentrates, such as a mixture of bran, oats and corn and oil-meal. The corn, oats and bran may be mixed in equal parts by weight and then feed enough of this mixture to keep the animal in good physical condition, besides giving him from one-fourth to one-half pound of oilmeal daily. With timothy hay as roughage the concentrates should contain the higher percentage of protein. A mixture consisting of 100 pounds bran, 200 pounds oats, 100 pounds cornmeal and 100 pounds oilmeal would supplement the timothy very well, using enough of the combination to keep the animal in good physical condition.

Succulent Feed For Lambs.

Recent experiments at the Iowa station show that with corn at ordinary prices, cheaper gains on lambs may be made with dry feed than with roots or silage. When corn and silage are low in price the gains made with silage are a little cheaper than those made with dry feed.

The largest total gains were made by the lambs getting sugar beets, and the finish of this lot was also a little better. The lot getting turnips and cabages required the largest amount of dry matter for each 100 pounds gain. Silage and dry feed came next.

The least amount of dry matter was required where sugar beets and mangel-worms were fed. The chief objection to mangel and sugar beets is the large amount of hand labor required to raise them.

Grading Up the Dairy Herd. If you cannot have pure bred dairy cows bred to some pure bred male and secure good grade animals. There is an ever increasing demand for good grade heifers and cows. Keep all of the heifers for your own use or for sale. Buyers will come to your door for them if you have any good ones.

BRAINY PAUPERS.

Brilliant Inventors Who Reaped Pitiful Rewards.

DIED IN POVERTY AND WANT.

Some Men of Genius Who Were Doomed to End Their Days in Obscurity, While Their Fruitful Ideas Made Millions and Fame For Others.

Now and again a man is born whose brain fairly bubbles with inventive genius. New ideas stream from him, and all branches of science are mastered with hardly an effort.

Such was Frederic William Martino, one of those many brilliant Italians who left their native land to seek fortune in a foreign country.

Martino came to England, and his name is most familiar from the Martini-Henry rifle, the breechblock of which was one of his numerous inventions.

It is an irony of fate that Martino's name should go down to posterity solely through a warlike invention which he himself thought little of when his greatest work was done in the cause of peace, for Martino was the discoverer of the process for converting basic slag into manure, a discovery which has put millions into the pockets of German manufacturers, but from which he himself, it is stated, never reaped a penny.

The dented rib for umbrellas, a new process for the extraction of nickel from its ore, a new development of platinoid — immensely important in electric work — and a brilliant invention for the reduction of gold ore, these are only a few of Martino's discoveries. And yet he was so lacking in business capacity that in spite of his extraordinary output of valuable ideas he died at Glasgow in 1903 a comparatively poor and obscure man, while dozens of others have been made richer by his genius.

In 1860 the chemist Lenoir patented a motor driven by an explosive mixture of air and gas. He used electric ignition obtained from a battery and a Ruhmkorff coil, actuating a sparking plug very similar to that in use in the modern motor. The system of valves by means of which the suction of the piston drew in the charge of gas for the next explosion was also designed by Lenoir.

In 1862 he actually produced a car which, if crude, was similar in all respects to that in use today, save that he employed coal gas instead of petrol, and this he actually drove himself through the streets of Paris.

Yet for reasons similar to those which caused the failure of Martino he never received the reward of his genius, and it was left for Daimler, nearly thirty years later, to produce the first of the practicable automobiles.

Lenoir died in 1900, poor and unknown.

Three years later, in 1903, the life of George Shergold came to an end in Gloucester workhouse. Shergold, originally a shoemaker, was the inventor of the safety bicycle. He built a machine of this order in the year 1876, the front wheel of which was twenty-seven inches and the rear wheel some thirty-one inches in diameter.

In 1900, when it first became generally known that the man whose invention had made millions for others was as poor as when he had cobbled shoes, a public subscription was raised, and for some time an allowance of 5 shillings a week was made to Shergold. But the funds became exhausted, and poor Shergold ended his life in the workhouse.

How many people have ever even heard of Scheele? Yet this poor Swedish chemist was perhaps the greatest discoverer of facts that the world has ever known.

We always hear in England that Priestley was the discoverer of oxygen. Yet Scheele made this most important of all chemical discoveries simultaneously with Priestley. And it was Scheele who discovered chlorine gas. Chlorine is perhaps the most important of all gases in commercial chemistry. It is the great bleacher that gives us white linen or white straw hats. It is also the best disinfectant known. It is essential to the manufacture of the great pain killer, chloroform, and it is used extensively for the extraction of gold from its ores.

Chlorine's value to the world has been incalculable, yet Scheele, the man who discovered it, lived hungry and died a pauper.

Professor Gore died a comparatively poor man, yet Gore was the inventor of the modern safety match, of the method of electroplating and of many other processes which have put millions into the pockets of manufacturers. Gore's book, "Electrometallurgy," published in 1870, is still a standard work on the subject.—London Answers.

GRANDMOTHERS USED SAGE TEA

To Darken the Hair and Restore Gray and Faded Hair to Its Natural Color.

It is easier to preserve the color of the hair than to restore it, although it is possible to do both. Our grandmothers understood the secret. They made a "sage tea," and their dark, glossy hair long after middle life was due to this fact. Our mothers have gray hairs before they are fifty, but they are beginning to appreciate the vision of our grandmothers in using "sage tea" for their hair and are fast following suit.

The present generation has the advantage of the past in that it can get a ready-to-use preparation called Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy. As a scalp tonic and color restorer this preparation is vastly superior to the ordinary "sage tea" made by our grandmothers. This remedy is sold under guarantee that the money will be refunded if it fails to do exactly as represented.

If your hair is losing color or coming out, start using Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur today, and see what a change it will make in a few days time.

This preparation is offered to the public at fifty cents a bottle, and is recommended and sold by all druggists. People's Drug Store special agent for Gettysburg.

THE TAILENDERS. Irrigation systems, like clouds, sometimes go back on the folks who are dependent on them for moisture. From one who has recently visited Grand Junction, Colo., we learn that many ranch owners who are dependent for their water supply on private irrigation enterprises have the past season been left badly in the lurch and compelled to pay $40 per acre for water which they had contracted at $2, this growing out of the fact that there was not enough water to go around. Naturally the matter has got into the courts, and the supreme court of the state has ruled that in a case where there is not enough water to supply all patrons of a system those who first bought and were furnished with water have the prior right and can compel service up to the limit of the amount which their contracts called for. This is mighty tough on those who have paid their good, hard cash for land at inflated prices on the supposition that they were to get water and who in seasons of a short supply might as well be in the midst of the Sahara desert. In view of this situation simple justice would seem to require that those who promoted such irrigation schemes and willfully took on more patrons than the system could supply should be held responsible for getting money under false pretenses. The prospective buyer of western ranch propositions should beware of buying land on the tail end of overloaded private irrigation enterprises. This warning has been given in these notes before, but it is worth repeating.
